Open-Access Online Learning Communities

Facing Pandemic:

Solidarity & Storytelling Across Differences

A free online space open to thinkers, learners, teachers, and doers around the world who want to examine the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic through an intersectional lens and share their own perspectives and experiences.

The self-paced program revolves around shared dialogue and discovery, not lectures or powerpoints. Participants engage with interdisciplinary multimedia content within a curated classroom, and then create their own posts to document how this pandemic looks and feels in their own particular contexts.

Facing Pandemic:

Grassroots NGO & CBO Resilience

Are you a community leader and/or administrator of a grassroots social change organization? Are you wondering how to navigate this difficult and uncertain time as the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) spreads globally?

We welcome you to enroll in this free online platform that has been built to help people like you learn about this pandemic, learn how to protect yourself and your community, learn strategies for resilience, and connect with others like you around the world.
